

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

As with all conferences, TCS 21 would not have occurred but for the generosity of our sponsors and the great dedication of so many individuals who contributed their time, energy, leadership, and creativity to planning and leading the conference. In addition to the Conference Planning Committee and TCS Officers and Board of Directors, The Coastal Society specifically acknowledges:

Kristen Fletcher, (Coastal States Organization, previously of Roger Williams University School of Law), current President of The Coastal Society who provided vital overall guidance for and implementation of conference planning;

James Fawcett (University of Southern California) and Kate Killerlain Morrison (The Nature Conservancy) who served as Conference Co-Chairs and contributed creative energy, logistical support, and overall leadership;

Lisa Schiavinato (North Carolina Sea Grant) who spent hundreds of hours as Program Chair, organized presenter abstracts to create the concurrent sessions schedule, coordinated the Track Co-Chairs and communicated with the Planning Committee, presenters and moderators;

Michelle Portman (Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute) and Jack Wiggin (University of Massachusetts Urban Harbors Institute) who provided guidance for the Opening Plenary designed to stimulate conference attendees to consider how port activities impact the coastal environment and what solutions are envisioned and implemented to minimize negative impacts, and Sarah Fischer (Fischer Consulting), Thomas Street (Office of the Assistant General Counsel for Ocean Services, NOAA) and Mike Wascom (Louisiana State University) who steered the effort for the Closing Plenary on the importance of leadership and diversity during the transition in the coastal management field as more experienced individuals are retiring and new individuals are entering the field;

The TCS 21 conference Track Co-Chairs who provided valuable input into the review of presenter submissions, the organization of sessions and the identification of session moderators: Effective Integration of Coastal Science, Policy and Management- Laura LaFrance (University of Hawaii at Manoa) and Betsi Beem (University of Sydney); International Coastal Management Concepts and Practices - Ariel Cuschnir (The Louis Berger Group, Inc.), and Leigh Taylor Johnson (California Sea Grant); Integrating Social Equity into Coastal Management- Terry Yasuko Ogawa (Group 70 International) and Chris Ellis (NOAA Coastal Services Center) - Coastal Energy Siting, Production and Consumption- Steven Tucker (NOAA/NOS Office of Ocean and Coastal Resource Management) and Megan Higgins (Rhode Island Sea Grant Legal Program, and Roger Williams University School of Law); Coastal Land and Watershed Use- Patrick Lawrence (University of Toledo Department of Geography)- Climate Change Impacts- Arwen Edsall (NOAA/NOS International Program Office, and University of Washington, School of Marine Affairs (Masters Candidate) and Lorry King (East Carolina University)- Working Waterfronts and Waterways- Tom Murray (Virginia Institute of Marine Sciences College of William and Mary) and Bob Goodwin (Ret., Washington Sea Grant);

Paul Ticco (NOAA National Marine Sanctuary Program) and Kristen Fletcher (Coastal States Organization, previously of Roger Williams University School of Law), who were an endless source of energy and guidance for the sponsorship of the conference;

Jack Wiggin (University of Massachusetts Urban Harbors Institute), Laurie Jodice (Clemson University), Rick Burroughs (University of Rhode Island), who led the efforts to promote and recognize student participation and excellence at the conference;

Chris O'Connor (Chris O'Connor Design) who was responsible for the layout and design of the Preliminary Program, Final Program and Abstract Book;

Sarah Pautzke (University of Massachusetts-Amherst) and Laurie Jodice (Clemson University) who created and maintained the conference web page and planning committee web page;

Kristen Fletcher (Coastal States Organization, previously of Roger Williams University School of Law), who designed the Call for Papers;

Charlotte Ferris (Roger Williams University School of Law) who provided administrative guidance and support to the Planning Committee;

Heidi Lovett (NOAA/NMFS Office of Sustainable Fisheries) who took on the role of Program Editor with the assistance of Kristen Fletcher, Judy Tucker and Kate Killerlain Morrison;

Christine Patrick (NOAA Ocean Exploration and Research) who took on the role of Proceedings Editor with the assistance of Tom Bigford (NOAA National Marine Fisheries Service, Habitat Protection Division), Jeff Smith (NOAA National Marine Fisheries Service, Habitat Protection Division), Bob Goodwin (Washington Sea Grant (Ret.)), Mo Lynch (College of William & Mary, Virginia Institute of Marine Science), Patrick Lawrence (Department of Geography & Planning, University of Toledo, Ohio), Laurie Jodice (Department of Parks, Recreation & Tourism Management- Clemson University), and Rebecca Day (Sutherland Asbill & Brennan LLP);

Jim Fawcett (University of Southern California) and Brittany White (University of California) who were responsible for the high quality and variety of the conference field trips;

Tali Engoltz (New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection) and Jeff Benoit (Restore America's Estuaries) who worked diligently to incorporate green principles into all of our conference planning;

Tali Engoltz (New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection) who developed the conference evaluation form;

John Cooksey (World Aquaculture Conference Management) who served as Conference Coordinator, and Judy Tucker, (Executive Director of The Coastal Society), who helped guide the entire planning process and Planning Committee;

John Cooksey (World Aquaculture Conference Management) who coordinated our on-site volunteers; and John Cooksey (World Aquaculture Conference Management) which supported the TCS 21 Online Submission system, and Bob Hamm and Erinn Kruser (OmniPress) which printed the TCS 21 Proceedings.

Many thanks again to all who helped bring TCS 21 to fruition!